

SCORES OF ACTORS HUNTING FOR WORK

Producing Managers Overrun
With Application for Engagement in Plays

(New York Times.)
Actors are complaining that the difficulty of obtaining employment this season is greater than it has been for a good many years. There are today many well known actors idle at what is usually the most active period of the theatrical year—actors whose services have been in demand and who have seldom been without engagements on Labor Day. Others who have signed contracts and are awaiting delayed calls for rehearsals are in the same situation as those without engagements of any sort.
The engagement agencies bear out the complaints of the actors. Their offices are overrun with applicants for places—they usually are, for that matter—and some players are asking for and accepting places much lower than those to which they have been accustomed.
The cause seems to be the tendency on the part of producing managers this year to hold back on the production of new plays until they have been able to feel the trend of theatrical business. Managers who heretofore have had half a dozen new plays before the public, or in the course of preparation by this time, are postponing their productions this year.
One firm that announced some thirty new pieces for production has put only two of them in rehearsal so far, although it is preparing to start others soon. Another firm that had three new plays running in New York on Labor Day last year has only one this year, and only one new company in rehearsal.
Of the Broadway theaters that housed first class plays at this time last season, seven of them are closed or are playing motion pictures. Only two new theaters, excluding the Winter Garden and the Follies Bergere, have been added to the list of last year. Last year fifteen of the Labor Day attractions were new plays; this year there are only nine that can be considered new productions.
All this means that there is less for the actors to do, for while there may be the usual number of "road productions" to fill the out-of-town theaters, Broadway productions may be considered a measure of the managers' activities. It would seem, however, that productions for "the road" are proportionately fewer so far this year. At least the big producing managers are sending out fewer companies.
On the other hand, according to some of the engagement agencies, there will be more than the usual number of what might be termed one-company managers this season. Men with just enough money to equip and send out one company are venturing into the field, and are taking charge of plays that have outrun their city usefulness, but that are still "good for the one-night stands."
The big producers generally are adopting the policy of "farming out" plays of this sort to eliminate from their offices and clerical and managerial work attached to "one-night stand" business. The one company manager, therefore, is able to rent good theatrical properties, and, of course, to give employment to many actors.
Many of these actors, however, belong to the seemingly unlimited supply of players who are not in demand for New York productions. For the latter the Broadway popularity of an actor, combined, of course, with his ability, makes him in demand, and when there are few Broadway productions under way the demand falls off.
There are plenty of announcements made of future productions, however, and the managers who are not so active as usual now, may make up for their slackness later in the season. Those closely connected with the theatrical business look on the delays in productions as a healthy sign. They think that by holding off until a safe guess at business conditions in general can be made the managers will have less chance of failure due to unreasonable productions, and will also be able to prepare their plays with greater care. The number of productions a manager makes in a season, they say, is of less consequence than the number of weeks the companies play to profitable business.
But the actors who are not so fortunate as to be in the few early productions don't wait a month or so longer than they expected before the first salary day comes around. They all want to be at work at the beginning of the season, and the season is supposed to be really under way on Labor Day.

SOME ASPIRATIONS OF COCHISE CITIZENS

Those Who Might Be Induced to Aid in Management of
New State's Affairs

(Correspondence.)
TOMBSTONE, Ariz., Sept. 6.—There will be no scarcity of candidates in Tombstone; the county seat will ask for its share of the loaves and fishes to be placed on the political banquet table this fall. Among the pronounced candidates are Col. H. L. Pickett, who has started his campaign simultaneously in every section of the territory by formal announcement in the newspapers. Charles McDonald, the present recorder, will be a candidate for the office of sheriff; W. G. Gilmore is a candidate for district attorney on the democratic ticket.
Probate Judge Frank Goodbody, now completing his seventh year in that office, would have been willing to hold this position for life, but under the constitution the probate court goes out of existence and Goodbody says he will retire now from official duty and his friends say that with home-rule now assured in Ireland he may return to the "old sod" and try his hand in the political game in his native land.
Allen R. English, familiar on the streets of Tombstone for thirty years, is telling his friends that he will cause his name to be placed on the democratic primary ballot for the office of superior judge. Mr. English ranks with the ablest lawyers in the territory and has many friends who regard him as possessing all the legal attainments required for the correct application of the law.
Editor Bill Hattich, of the Prospector, has positively declined to allow the further consideration of his name for state senator. He is the man who, from first to last, has held aloft the banner of Col. Pickett for United States senator and he is more enthusiastic over his home and favorite candidate than ever before. The Prospector has been an important feature in all the Arizona campaigns during the last thirty years, and Hattich says that to mould political opinion is more glorious than to become a self-seeking candidate for any office.
Among the republicans in the county seat there is a multitude of glooms. Jack Williams, the district attorney, since his return from Los Angeles, where he presided over the Hassayampa banquet table, has been devoting considerable time to the repair of his "hoot nanny" automobile and it is expected that he will ask for the republican nomination for congress, although his name is mentioned in connection with the position of superior judge in this county. A. H. Gardner is as mum as a clam and refuses absolutely to discuss either politics or candidates. It is presumed that he is waiting to receive word from Hovall Smith and Delegate Cameron. Sheriff Jack White returned to Tombstone yesterday from Phoenix, where his family are residing for the present, he having recently purchased a nice residence property in that city. He declared yesterday that he would not be a candidate for any office, but that he would not be a nonentity in the campaign, and that he expected to head a "get even" committee and attend to some gentleman for whom he put a rod in pickle long ago.

In Bisbee there seems to be no rush for the limelight on the part of aspirants. At Lowell on Monday evening a large club was organized, but there was no one endorsed for any office and the meeting brought out no new candidates. Judge Murphy will be a candidate for recorder and it is said that the democrats of Lowell and Bisbee will give to him a warm support for the office. Mike Hannon, a well-known Lowell democratic wheelhorse, is being mentioned for the legislature. A. A. Murray, of Bisbee, is a candidate for district attorney. Fred Sutter is after the superior judgeship and John Bolan is a candidate for sheriff.
Tom Fulghum, of Wilcox, was in Tombstone, accompanying his daughters who were in the county seat to take examination for teachers' certificates. Mr. Fulghum says that the democrats of the north end of the county will expect to have a fair representation on the ticket, but that as yet there is no declared candidate. He told of the preparations being made for the Wilcox fair and said that it would be a grand success, as it was already known that people were coming from all over Cochise county and from the Gila valley in Graham county. He said that ample accommodations would be provided for all, and that the people of Wilcox would leave nothing undone for the entertainment of the visitors.

Eastern Markets Yesterday

(By L. J. Overlock.)
BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Dullness was more responsible for the reaction than any aggressive selling. Stocks sagged of their own weight and buying orders were very limited. The rally seems to have exhausted all the enthusiasm and the trend is again downward. Look for lower prices in both lists and advise sales on all strong spots.—Paine, Webber and Co. Curbs dull and unchanged. Demand continues for Dens but offerings few and far between.
Total sales New York, 417,200.

Downward Turn in Stocks
NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—After almost a week of steady advances in which stocks won back a part of the heavy losses of the August decline, the market suddenly reversed its position today. Prices tumbled until a large portion of the recent gains were soon eliminated. Some stocks, including Baltimore and Ohio and Missouri Pacific, fell to the lowest points of the year. Such prominent issues as Santa Fe, Canadian Pacific, Lehigh Valley, Northern Pacific, Reading and Union Pacific fell back two points. U. S. Steel lost 1-2. During the morning, trading was unusually listless. The afternoon became more active, culminating in a vigorous attack on the list. The stocks of the Hawley roads moved against the market. Iowa Central made especially good gains. Bonds heavy. Sales, $2,025,000. Governments unchanged.

Practical Fashions

This charming little dress offers us something which is really a novelty. It is worn with a gumpie to which the long sleeves are attached, but these may be omitted in warm weather. To obtain the peasant shoulder effect there is a seam down the outside of the arm only, not around the armhole, and each half of the sleeve is cut in one with the front and back side bodies of the dress. The central portion is a full length in front and half length in the back, where it extends some distance below the hips, producing the impression of the French style. The skirt section is quite short and is plaited from the edge of the front panel all around. Wash materials, such as linen, pongee silk, gingham, and also cheviot, serge and foulard silk will be appropriate for this dress. The pattern (5183) is cut in sizes 4 to 12 years. Medium size requires 2 1/4 yards of 36 inch material and 1 1/4 yards of same width for the gumpie.

To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Department," of this paper. Write name and address plainly, and be sure to give size and number of pattern.

Cananea
SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 7.—A new record in surgery was established by the surgeons at Fort Sam Houston during the six months the army was mobilized here. Of 187 operations performed, 183 were successful, there having been three deaths as the result of transportation to the army hospital from other points. The causes contributing to the great success of the surgical work were said by Chief Surgeon Major Hutton to have been the excellent condition of the men, the efficient sanitation maintained at the camp, and the salubrity of the climate. The health report of the city for the month of August substantiates the fact that the climate here is a powerful factor in keeping the death rate to the lowest possible fraction—the rate being only 1.7 per 1,000. This record is in striking contrast with the death rate for August in the large cities of the north and east. The sick rate in the camp ranged from 19 to 23 per 1,000, as against 42 per 1,000 in barracks elsewhere. The higher rate, 23, was the result of the bringing 300 recruits from northern points, all of whom were seized with mumps.
